

Never forgotten

Red garments glowed softly and rippled gently in the breeze on the evening of May 5, as they hung from teepees at Napi Friendship Centre in Pincher Creek. The red dress has become a recognized symbol of missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, each representing a life lost — a sad reality that hits close to home for many living on Piikani First Nation. To read Abby Morning Bull's story, turn to page 6.

Photo by Gillian Francis

